(Feifei is in front of the theatre, anxious, when Neil shows up)

- Feifei: 哎呀, 你终于来了。我都在剧院前等了老半天了。Let's go in!
- Neil: Calm down, Feifei. You are too excited!
- Feifei: 我能不能激动吗! 太爱这部剧了, 今天终于可以看了! Let's go!
- Neil: The tickets... (He searches his pockets) the tickets... Where are the tickets? I can't find the tickets!
- Feifei: What!? 票找不到了? 你没开玩笑吧?
- Neil: I'm not joking! I can't find them!
- Feifei: 你怎么能把票搞丢了? 怎么能这样对我呢? I'm so disappointed!
- Woman 1: Oh! Look, she is hysterical! Do you think she will slap him?
- Woman 2: He is really inconsiderate!
- Neil: Feifei, don't make a scene!
- Feifei: I have to make a scene. 我大吵大闹是因为你把票丢了, 我盼望了这么久的, 这下好, 看不成了。
- Neil: 'To make a scene' is an expression we use in English to describe when somebody causes a disturbance or is loud in public. Often it's embarrassing. Let's hear some examples of how this expression is used:

Examples

I will never go back to the restaurant again. Last night Jane made a scene when the waiter brought fish instead of the beef she had ordered! It was very embarrassing.

Don't make a scene, Alan! We are not married yet and I can go out with whoever I like – including your best friend!

- Feifei: 'To make a scene' 常用来形容某人在公共场合大吵大闹。I'm sorry, Neil. 我不是故意要当着这么多人面冲你嚷嚷, 可是你知道我是多么想看这部剧吗? 诶, 出租车司机这是要干嘛呢?

- Taxi driver: (Approaches them in a hurry) There you are, sir. I found these tickets on the back seat of my taxi. They might have slipped from your pocket.
- Feifei: 太好了，他在车上找到了票！票肯定是从你口袋里给掉到车座位上的。
- Neil: Oh, thank you so much! Feifei was really angry. Now, the drama is over!
- Feifei: 你是说戏就要开始了吧！你真是我的好朋友 Neil. You are my best friend ever!
- Neil: Thank you, Feifei. You are my best friend too! I'm glad we can watch the play together!
- Woman 1: Look. Isn't it marvellous? They are friends again!
- Woman 2: Don't you just love a happy ending?
- Feifei: 咱们进去吧！ Oh, I'm so happy! Bye.
- Neil: Bye.
