

词汇: neighbours 邻居

Do you know the names of the people who live next door? Chances are you live next to someone, but do you actually know them? Sadly, the only time we do seem to hear about people's neighbours is when things go wrong – hearing people say things like they have the neighbours from hell! So, what does go wrong?

When talking about famous feuds with people who live in proximity, you only need to think of the Montagues and Capulets in Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet. Thankfully, most real-life quarrels don't go that far. These days, especially in cities, many people live in condominiums, tightly packed into apartment blocks. Our neighbours are all around us – so what issues can come from that?

The first obvious cause of dispute is noise pollution. Loud bass pumping through the walls, construction, or people arguing next door can disrupt the harmony of your living space. Asking someone directly to turn the music down can cause you to feel anxious. However, getting someone like a building manager involved to speak to your neighbour and making complaints official can make things more awkward down the line as you didn't speak to your neighbour directly.

And then what about smells? If your neighbour likes eating especially pungent food, something that offends your nostrils, and that smell drifts through your window, what can you do? Some other common issues include water leaking through the ceiling, pets making noise, and littering from the balcony above you.

And then, if you're lucky enough to own a garden, that can present even more issues to fight with your neighbour about! This could include hedges and fences that are too high, balls and toys invading your garden or hitting your windows, and boundary disputes over where your neighbours' land ends. All these can create animosity over time.

It's not easy living next door to someone, especially if they're noisy. But having a clear and honest line of dialogue might help. Also, try considering if the things you are doing could upset your neighbours. If it's something that would upset you, maybe think again.

词汇表

next door	隔壁
neighbour from hell	非常糟糕的邻居
feud	争吵不休，长期不和
proximity	邻近
quarrel	争吵
condominium	公寓住房
apartment block	公寓楼
dispute	纠纷
noise pollution	噪音污染
bass	低音
argue	争吵
harmony	和谐，和睦
living space	生活空间
building manager	物业经理
hedge	树篱
fence	围栏，篱笆
boundary	分界，此处指两家之间的界线
animosity	敌意，憎恶
dialogue	对话

测验与练习

1. 阅读课文并回答问题。

1. Which famous piece of literature is given as example of a family feud?
2. What examples of noise pollution are given?
3. What might getting a building manager involved in a problem cause?
4. What is the problem with pungent food?
5. What issues can arise if you have a garden?

2. 选择意思恰当的单词或词组来完成下列句子。

1. They are really disrupting the _____ of the neighbourhood.

feud	harmony	fence	boundary
------	---------	-------	----------

2. This situation is getting worse and creating real _____ between us.

bass	fence	proximity	animosity
------	-------	-----------	-----------

3. Can you hear the _____ coming from that stereo? It's shaking the walls!

condominium	argue	bass	fence
-------------	-------	------	-------

4. Can you please cut your _____? It's growing on my side of the boundary!

quarrel	hedge	dispute	animosity
---------	-------	---------	-----------

5. We have a long-standing _____ with our neighbours. Things have been bad for years.

fence	bass	feud	condominium
-------	------	------	-------------

答案

1. 阅读课文并回答问题。

1. Which famous piece of literature is given as example of a family feud?

The Montagues and Capulets in Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.

2. What examples of noise pollution are given?

Loud bass, construction, noise from pets or people arguing next door can disrupt the harmony of your living space.

3. What might getting a building manager involved in a problem cause?

Getting a building manager involved can make things more awkward down the line as you didn't speak to your neighbour directly.

4. What is the problem with pungent food?

The smell may drift in through your window, but you can't just ask someone to stop eating.

5. What issues can arise if you have a garden?

Hedges and fences that are too high, balls and toys invading your garden or hitting your windows and boundary disputes over where your neighbours' land ends.

2. 选择意思恰当的单词或词组来完成下列句子。

1. They are really disrupting the harmony of the neighbourhood.

2. This situation is getting worse and creating real animosity between us.

3. Can you hear the bass coming from that stereo? It's shaking the walls!

4. Can you please cut your hedge? It's growing on my side of the boundary!

5. We have a long-standing feud with our neighbours. Things have been bad for years.